

Sharon Lau is a communications consultant on the island of O‘ahu. Born and raised in Kāne‘ohe, she attended Castle High School and graduated from Arizona State University, earning a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communication Studies, graduating Summa Cum Laude.

During the same year, she was chosen out of 65,000 students, comprising ASU’s then student body, to represent the university at the National Conference on Ethics - a symposium created to elicit awareness and promote ethical conduct throughout colleges across the nation, held at the West Point Military Academy in New York.

She earned her Master of Arts in Communication and Leadership at Gonzaga University in 2011, with the desire to teach upon graduating. While she has served as an adjunct professor in the past, teaching in the areas of gender studies and relational communication, she currently focuses on her consulting work.

As a communications consultant for the past ten years, Sharon works with individuals and organizations to improve their current modes and methods of communication that include one-on-one training workshops for youth learners, ages 10 and up focusing on the areas of public speaking and professional development.

Sharon enjoys traveling, nature photography, and spending as much time as possible with her husband, Sean, son, Peyton, and daughter, Lily-Rose. She and her family also attend New Hope Windward where they continually foster their relationship with God, a faith that is anchored by His teachings of love, inclusivity, giving, and purposeful living.
